

We are hiring instructors who have experience in teaching, patient care, and wilderness environments. We are especially interested in applicants who have experience working with underrepresented people including those who are Black, Indigenous, Latinx, Asian, and others.

LOCATION: United States

OVERVIEW:

Aligned with our mission to provide inclusive, supportive, and welcoming learning environments for all students, Wilderness Medical Associates (WMA) International seeks to hire U.S.A.-based instructors who have both teaching and patient care experience with underrepresented people, including those who are Black, Indigenous, Latinx, Asian, and others. WMA is the leading provider of wilderness first aid trainings in the U.S.A. with international partners located in Canada, Brazil, China, Japan, Iceland, Belgium, Tanzania, and Taiwan. For more than 40 years, WMA has succeeded by attracting world-class instructors with significant pre-hospital and emergency medical experience focused on wilderness, remote, and low-resource settings. To help students gain both confidence and competence in managing medical emergencies, WMA courses involve a mix of classroom learning and skills practice. To learn more about WMA, please visit our website: wildmed.com.

RESPONSIBILITIES

- Teach Wilderness First Aid, Wilderness Advanced First Aid, and Wilderness First Responder courses within the United States. There may be some opportunities to teach abroad.
- There are opportunities to teach Wilderness EMS Upgrade and Wilderness Advanced Life Saving courses for those with more advanced medical credentials.
- All instructors will begin as Assistant Instructors.

QUALIFICATIONS

- Experience in teaching diverse or underrepresented groups, including those who are Black, Indigenous, Latinx, Asian, and others, in formal or informal settings.
- Recreational or professional outdoor experience working with diverse or underrepresented groups.
- A license to practice medicine (e.g., EMS providers, Nurses, PAs, MDs, DOs, etc.).
- Note: Applicants with ample teaching and outdoor experience who are not licensed medical providers but have significant patient care experience through activities such as ski patrol will also be considered.

COMPENSATION:

Based on medical credentials and teaching experience.
